

ADVENTURE IN PERSPECTIVE

a Team Building Program presented jointly by Black Sky Training and Zoom Air

The Adventure in Perspective is held weekdays, 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., for groups of 10 to 30 people.

Price: $129.00 per person Price includes the program, all program materials, bottled water, and box lunch. (Prices do not include sales tax.)

Two industry pioneers have joined forces — and their special talents — to create a fresh, innovative, and effective team building program.

- Black Sky Training, LLC, has over seven years of experience training aviation and aerospace crews to work together safely and successfully. They are the first company to receive Federal Aviation Authority safety approval for a training program. Black Sky's expertise is in teaching how to use the Model of Human Behavior to improve the team's success. The program provides the participants with definitive tools, easily applied and expanded, which are useful in the workplace or in any social interaction.
- Zoom Air Orlando, LLC, introduced the U.S. to a new kind of eco-friendly aerial adventure over four years ago, combining the exhilaration of zip-lining with the fun and satisfaction of conquering assorted challenges at heights of 20 to nearly 50 feet, in a natural setting.

With the Adventure in Perspective, lessons are introduced in a stimulating classroom session, then reiterated and illustrated in activities out in the forest of the Central Florida Zoo. Your team's members will begin to understand how they spur — or stifle — constructive action by their teammates, what colors their personal responses to others, and how to use this information to move the team to a higher vantage point! We understand the value of your resources. If you're going to pay your team (and us) for a day not devoted to the regular duties of bringing in revenue and keeping things running smoothly, you want the most bang for your buck. The Adventure in Perspective program is designed to provide that.

- The day's agenda allows for minimal downtime; we want your team learning and growing the entire time they are with us.
- Classroom instruction is interactive and geared to communicate with different styles of learning: Visual, auditory, and hands-on.
- Participation in classroom activities is required; our trainers will make that happen.
- There is a written test after the classroom material is presented. Results will be made available to you, to document that your team was engaged in learning the new material.
- The outdoor activities put your team in a fresh environment, opening them up to new learning and development.
- Using their bodies and all their senses and being active at different elevations opens participants even more to absorb the lessons and achieve — literally — a new perspective.
- The low-ropes and on-ground initiatives give the participants opportunities to apply their new knowledge in a live "lab," helping the lessons to put down roots, so to speak, in their brains, and providing practice at generalizing the new material to real-life situations.
- The Rainforest Team Trek, with a built-in activity again designed to reinforce the morning's training, pushes participants outside their comfort zones, giving them the opportunity to learn they can exceed their normal self-expectations and work effectively with others to help the whole team "rise above."
- More timid participants who successfully conquer even part of the Rainforest walk away with increased self-confidence and less fear. (Our goal is that they conquer it all, and we're experienced at making that happen.)
- At the end of the adventure, the experiences and lessons of the day are reviewed, clarified, and tied together in a facilitated debriefing session.
